

Harvard ManageMentor On-the-Job Action Plans

Diversity, Inclusion, and Belonging

Now that you have completed the lessons in this course, you are ready to use the concepts to improve your performance as a leader in your organization. This On-the-Job Action Plans document will help you identify opportunities to apply and develop critical skills.

Successfully incorporating new skills into your daily routine will take time, focus, and commitment, but will have an impact on you and your organization. Your goal will be to improve your ability to apply the skills listed below, consistently well in your workplace. Identify one or more action items for applying your selected skill and then reflect on the outcomes of your actions. Be sure to keep your manager informed of your progress and accomplishments.

You can complete this On-the-Job Action Plan document as many times as you like to create Action Item(s) for each skill, and as necessary. Action Plans are typically private and do not need to be submitted. However, it may be a good idea to have them readily available as reference material for further learning opportunities.

The skills for this topic are:

1. Sharpen your awareness of what diversity is, why it matters, and how to have more courageous conversations about it
2. Interrupt bias in hiring, managing, and developing your team
3. Cultivate an inclusive team environment where everyone feels valued, respected, and heard
4. Be an advocate for your team members, enabling them to feel safe enough to bring their whole selves to work
5. Support and enhance your organization's efforts toward diversity, inclusion, and belonging

Select Your Skill to Focus On

Since improving any skill takes time, it helps to focus your development efforts on those skills that will have the greatest impact. Consider, what are your strengths? Where could you improve? What are the priorities from your manager or company? Select one skill for which you'll create an action plan.
